Your support makes a difference to the judiciary and the administration of justice.

Judicature has a long and revered tradition for scholarly articles that advance improvements in the administration of justice. Its mission complements the Duke Law Center for Judicial Studies’ mission to bring scholars, practitioners, and judges together in collaborative efforts to understand, support, and advance our justice system.

Now under the editorial guidance of the judges in Duke Law’s Master of Judicial Studies Program, and with the support of all facets of the legal profession, Judicature continues to illuminate the practical challenges of the practice of judging, the ideas and research that advance our understanding of the law, and the shared labor of the bench, bar, and academy as we seek to improve the administration of justice. Because of the journal’s value to the judiciary, Duke Law has committed to providing complimentary subscriptions to every Article III judge, federal magistrate judge, and state supreme court justice. Sponsorships make this commitment sustainable. Our circulation continues to grow; as of autumn 2016 we mail to approximately 4,000 judges, lawyers, scholars, libraries, law firms, businesses, government agencies, and other organizations.
